One of the things that seems as certain as life, death, taxes and day light saving time, is that sooner or later a vast Credibility Gap opens up between the President & his Administration and Congress and the various individuals and groups that we willingly refer to as the People. It should not be surprising that the present Administration is setting some kind of track record in developing this Occupational Disease, since nobody completely understood what Jimmy Carter was all about to begin with, and nuthin' much has happened to clear away the cobwebs since. According to reports from Washington there are a number of Congressmen & Senators sore as boiled ovals over the way Carter pulled the rug from under 'em after gettin' them to push the $60.00 Rebate. Of course, there had been other breaches of what they call Political Etiquette between White (CONT. ON PAGE 3)

Public Hearing On Hiring Aliens For Farm Work Set

Public hearings on proposed revisions of federal regulations on employment of aliens for temporary farm jobs will be held May 27-28 at the Hemilare Convention Center in San Antonio, Assistant Secretary of Labor Ernest G. Green announced today.

Green said that representatives of farm employers, workers, crew leaders and others with special interests in temporary employment of farmworkers will have an opportunity to testify or provide statements for the record.

Green said the purpose of the hearings is to ensure that whatever regulations are issued by the Department of Labor for the 1978 harvest season will treat all interested groups in an equitable manner, consistent with the (CONT. ON PAGE 22)

Battle Looms On FDA Commissioner's Antibiotics Stand

The making of a pitched battle, according to people close to the situation, could last for years over Dr. Don Kennedy's assertion that he will seek severe restrictions on the use of penicillin, several tetracycline drugs and combination products containing these antibiotics.

Last week American Cyanamid Company released a statement charging that the FDA's most important advisory group, the National Advisory Food & Drug Committee, met recently to consider a subcommittee report on the use of antibiotics in animal feeds. The full committee decided to recommend the restriction on use of penicillin, but rejected the suggestion that tetracyclines in animal feed be restricted. (CONT. ON PAGE 22)

Former Texas Ag Commissioner Gets Responsibility of Pushing Carter's Proposed Energy Plan for USDA

Present analysis of the overall effort of the energy plan outlined last week by President Carter by virtually all levels of agriculture, livestock and the food business in general is that they apparently can expect a fair shake, but that it will be an expensive adventure in conservation as costs and taxes included in the plan are applied. Particularly bothersome to many are the expected sharp rises in transportation costs.

Agribusiness seems to have been accorded high priorities since any program which cripples food production is certain to create considerable heat from consumers and in Congress. Former Texas Agriculture Commissioner John White has emerged as top advocate for the President's plan from his post as Deputy Secretary of Agriculture. White was quoted as saying, "as a whole, agriculture seems to have come off in good shape."

The President made only one direct reference to agriculture in his April 20 speech saying, "fertilizer manufacture and crop drying, which must use natural gas," would be exempt from the proposed sliding-scale tax. White pointed out that USDA would like to avoid the proposed gasoline tax, but had no commitment from the White House in this regard.

White stated there is no indication the Administration plans a fuel allocation system, but predicted that should such a step be necessary, agriculture would have the same priorities (CONT. ON PAGE 8)

Stuph & Thangs

House Staffers & Congress, most of which were simply blamed on ignorance & inexperience on both.

The Credibility Gap between the White House and the News Media is also a lead pipe cinch to develop sooner or later and here again we are seeing some fast breakin' developments along this war zone. Recently Secy of Ag Bob

Bergland embarrassed some of the news people when he let fly with that trial balloon on a Canadian-U.S. wheat cartel, and it later developed that it was just somethin' about as solid as conversation between him and one Canadian.

Recently Bergland really teed off the press when he stated that the Poultry

Industry had been puttin' pressure on him for an embargo on soybean sales overseas. The reporters dutifully reported this, and when folks started diggin' into it they could find no one who represented the Poultry Folks who had done any such thing. Then

Bergland claimed he had been "misquoted", and the News Media really howled and offered tapes and notes to prove they had not imagined the story.

Later Bergland said if he did say it his just musta "misspoke".

Now comes the great Energy Crisis

Program, born of Carter and midwifed

by James Schlesinger, the as yet un-appointed Energy Secy, and just to make sure the President's dire predictions of disaster frightened us enough, Schlesinger put some old cronies at the CIA to work on a summary of the Energy

Outlook, which was sprung on us right ahead of Carter's talk. After the News

Media took this tale hook, line & sinker

and plastered it on front pages & in prime time, they discovered it was simply a rehash of old stuph which they had already printed over & over and was no news. Then on the heels of this little caper, here comes a special report

from a United Nations Committee that says there is oil & gas enuff for perhaps the next 70 to 100 years, we simply have to go get it and it will also be very expensive.

It seems certain that Credibility

Gaps will develop, since the situation

forever changes and with it a President has to switch his priorities and targets, and sometimes it seems like it is hard to nail any thing down for sure.

Probably one of the more embarrassing things of the kind was President Ford's Whip Inflation Now campaign with its

WIN buttons, and the fact he had a Recession on his hands before the buttons got distributed around. Now that

Carter is tryin' to switch his goal from depressed economic problems to control of inflation, someone suggested the other day that some of the fugitives

from the Ford Administration were thinkin' about offerin' the Carter Crew

their surplus WIN buttons at a cut rate bargain.

It is to be expected that no politician is goin' to embrace a simple solution to any problem, but one cure for the Credibility Gaposis, might be take the old man's advice and he always said,

"Just tell the truth, son, and then you don't have to remember what you said."

Ever thine,

The Editor.

P.S.: Uncle Dunk figgers when those Energy Tax Dollars start rollin' in the Big Move in Washington will be a search for New Problems to throw all that money at. Dunk says if you can't figger out why the Govmint wants to tax us for gas, oil, etc., and then rebat-

the money, you just ain't been payin' attention to how Washington works.

Dunk says one of his South Texas

operatives suggests that they amend the laws concernin' aliens workin' in this country in such a way that anytime

some Labor Leader or Reformer gripes

about these pore folks workin' over-here he should immediately have to take one of those jobs away from that alien for about 80 days. That much hard labor might revitalize some brains

here & there. — Thassell, Brother!

Energy Priorities

generally which have been the past to food production. During the energy crisis, the Arab oil embargo followed the Arab oil embargo.
Nixon Ford administration enjoyed top priority in the category and right behind energy services concerned with public and safety.

White warned that the food and culture system would undergo changes and that energy would right up the top of the list of concerns along other major problems such as capital investment, personnel, etc. He said that agriculture would have to use available energy
the best of its ability and make a way of life or there could be serious trouble ahead.

White, at a press briefing, said
Secretary Bergland and the USDA support and applaud the President's energy message. "Our food and culture can and must provide for concerned national security," White said. "The food system is the heart of the nation. It is the basis of our survival. This includes all phases from production to home preparation and consumption."

A massive drive for on-farm conservation will be launched, but pointed out the department planned
"continue to have priority for energy users to be sure the cost of food to consumers does not suffer excessive inflationary impact through higher energy costs."

Most authorities in various food and agriculture production sectors
to agree that Congress is expected make some changes in the Carter
As a result of the Congress taking action, all interests are giving hearings and efforts to promote culture and food interests in the future.

However, modifications in the plan are expected to be rather since once the service are lightened general public will find there is unpleasantness and little joy in the
it will affect everyone and even members of Congress, had just as the White House caught the heat of the energy program off the ground
the various congressional made a consensus impossible.

Father: "Does your boy have any money?"
Daughter: "You mean the money
that's what he asked about."

PINZGAUER

Boot Strap Owners Helping To Shape Pinzgauer Future In U. S.

Canton, Texas — Dave Kaseman, an advertising man, Dan Anderson, Richardson, a lawyer, and George Murphy, Richardson, a Doctor of Veterinary Medicine, owners of Boot Strap Cattle Co., are some of the most enthusiastic Pinzgauer breeders in the country.

Their enthusiasm extends beyond breeding of Pinzgauer cattle into activities of Southwest and American Pinzgauer associations and Pinzgauer sales.

Kaseman, who has advertising firms in several southwestern cities, said the trio became friends in Junior Chamber of Commerce activities and decided to become partners and go into the cattle business, because all shared a desire for rural life.

"We chose Pinzgauer cattle because we wanted cattle which could take care of themselves on pasture without much feeding, would breed easily and calve without difficulty, and would be ideal for crossbreeding to produce the kind and size beef carcasses that the super markets and housewives want," Kaseman said. "We also chose Pinzgauer because we wanted to be active in a breed organization, and help shape policies of the organization."

Although Boot Strap Cattle Co. is only about two years old, its owners have been active members of several committees in both the Texas and American Pinzgauer associations, and Anderson has served as secretary of the state organization.

Kaseman said that one of the chief ideas they are promoting in the Pinzgauer associations is permitting Pinzgauer heifers to attain sufficient size and age to calve without difficulty before breeding them.

David and Lisa Kaseman, left, and George Murphy, Richardson, are shown behind the halfblood Pinzgauer heifer they bid on at $2,550 to top the National Western Pinzgauer Sale in Denver. A few days later she produced a heifer calf, Mrs. Joe Fletcher, wife of the consignor, from Sheridan, Wyo., is at the halter.

"Some other 'exotic' breeds of cattle have unnecessarily earned the reputation of being difficult breeders simply because the owners were looking for a fast payday and bred the heifers too young," Kaseman said. "In our own operations, we don't breed the heifers until they are at least two years old and we haven't had any calving problems," he added.

The Boot Strap partners were also active in getting the national organization to implement a policy of recordation of heifers sired by three-quarter or higher percentage bulls so that up-breeding programs could be started without using artificial insemination.

Partners Dave and Lisa Kaseman, Canton, in Boot Strap Cattle Co., are shown with some of the Kaseman's Quarter Horses, an other interest in addition to Pinzgauer cattle for the young couple.

A halfblood Pinzgauer cow with her three-quarter heifer calf of the Boot Strap Cattle Co., Canton, demonstrate quality of this young herd.

The Boot Strap partners have also been leaders at Pinzgauer sales, having purchased or consigned the top sellers at three of the association's consignment sales, including a bred halfblood heifer for $2,550 that topped the 1976 National Western Pinzgauer sale at Denver, which turned out to be a bonanza for them.

"The heifer was only a few days from calving when we bought her, and the consignor, Joe Fletcher of Sheridan, Wyo., took her back home and calved her for us — and she had a three-quarter heifer calf... Fletcher bought the pair back at a good profit to us without us ever bringing her to Texas," Kaseman said.

Boot Strap also bought one of the first pureblood Pinzgauer bulls to enter the U.S. He is called "Alamo" and has since been syndicated, and his semen is being collected and distributed by C.O.B.A.

Although Pinzgauer numbers are so limited in this country that none of the owners want to part with them, Boot Strap is taking its best halfblood cow and three-quarter heifer calf to the National sale which will be held in

Collier Diamond C Simmental Club Calves Average $412.50

Stephenville - In the Collier Diamond C Ranch Simmental-cross club calf sale held at the Diamond C Ranch near here April 28, the 82 head sold for an average of $412.50.

John B. Collier IV, general manager of the ranch, said the sale was highly successful "and was certainly one of the most unusual such sales ever held in the State of Texas."

What made it so unusual was the manner in which the calves were presented to prospective buyers. Each buyer was given a number prior to the sale, and when his number was called he was permitted to select three head from the 60 head on display and start bidding on them at $950 each, the floor price set on the calves. If there were no bids, that buyer got them for the base price of $825.

Not many sold that way, as agriculture teachers and FFA and 4-H Club members from all over Texas and much of Oklahoma bid briskly for the choice calves. The 82 calves went to 19 different buyers.

Some of the volume buyers included:

Bob Ledbetter, Edinburg, three calves for $1,450; E. R. McKinney, Harlingen, two calves including the sale topper at $875; Steve and Tammy Pressley, Breckenridge; Dan Newville, Lexington, Okla., the second high seller at $850; Dick Carey, Mineral Wells, three calves; Terry Denton, Lewisville, Texas, three calves; and Mary Lytle, Stout, Okla., two calves.

February was truly outstanding. During this period, Rio Vista doctors and technicians performed 2,085 non-surgical procedures involving 17 breeds of cattle that resulted in 1,868 confirmed pregnancies for a conception rate of 85 percent, according to West. "We know of no other transfer firm in the country that can match this record," he added.

Texas Simmental Carcass Futurity Set for Dec. 3

Stephenville - The first Texas Simmental Assn. Carcass Futurity and Field Day will be held at Tarleton State University's beef laboratory here Saturday, Dec. 3, 1977.

There has been $1,500 in premium money set up for winners of the various categories in this contest. Entries will be limited to 85 steers, but entries are open to anyone in Texas. Entries must be halfblood Simmental or higher percentage and sired by bulls registered in the American Simmental Assn.

The cattle will be judged on carcass value per day of age, and since there will be no on-hoof judging, the cattle do not have to be halter broken.

All carcasses will be put on display after the contest, and several instructors at Tarleton State U. will explain the yield grade and quality grade standards which lead to the placings.

There will be a $20 entry fee, which will go to Tarleton State U. to help pay for slaughtering the cattle.

After the show, the carcasses will be offered for sale at the current market price. However, Tarleton State U. and the sale, this sale is a dispersion of the O. D. Anderson and William T. Jarvis herds along with production from the Jack Walling and W. H. Barsh herds.

Red Chain Food Stores in Stephenville have agreed to buy all unsold carcasses. "This will be a great opportunity for all cattlemen to see just how carcasses are evaluated under the new USDA meat grading system, and will show them how to select the type beef animals which produce the kind of carcasses we are breeding for today," said John B. Collier IV, Stephenville, a member of the futurity committee.

TEXAS SHORTHORN NEWS

Rufus Hinton Maintained Size In His Shorthorns Through Opposite Trend

Venus, Texas — Rufus, Lucille and Mary Hinton whose Shorthorn Farm is located near Venus south of Mansfield, Texas, have loved with the belief that a big cow is a good cow, if she also carries the fertility, milking ability and other genetic traits necessary to producing a good, big calf.

All through the era when the beef cattle business was going to short, squatly, heavily beefed animals with a lot of waxy fat, Hinton was attempting to resist that trend by maintaining the size of his animals.

"That was hard to do because ro-placements for the large cattle be-came almost impossible to find," he says. "Now that the trend has gone back to the taller, longer bodied and larger animals, I believe I'm ahead of many Shorthorn breeders in that respect," Hinton says.

He recalls that he was at a consign-ment sale in 1930 in which one of the consignors put a footnote on the listing of his lots that said that his cows were big — that he was milking 80 cows back at home and none of them weighed less than a ton. "Those cows impressed me and his statement stuck with me through the years," Hinton said. So much so, in fact, that many of Hinton's present cows weigh in the 1,400-1,500 pound range.

Through a combination of natural breeding to Hinton's herd sire, a bull that placed second in his class at the Dallas Fair two years ago, and by artificial insemination to some of the Shorthorn breed's top sires such as "Clark" and "Great White Hope," Hinton is getting the length of body, height and size he wants.

"I believe you have to stay in the breed, because breeding to large 'Ex-

Size and milking ability are two of the factors Rufus Hinton requires of his "keeper" Shorthorn females, some of which are doubly registered as both beef and milking Shorthorns.

otic breeds would dilute your blood lines and you could never get rid of that dilution," Hinton says.

Hinton has been active in Texas Shorthorn Association activities for many years and once served as a director of TSA, but in recent years his daughter, Mary, has been the more active member of the family. She was Shorthorn Lassie Princess one year, and was Texas Shorthorn Queen the next. She has also served in the public and information field as Texas Junior Shorthorn reporter, a job that also included reporting some of the senior association's activities.

Now she's assistant Home Demonstration Agent for Cooke County at Gainesville, but is in the process of moving to a similar position at Plainview, where she will be married to an irrigation farmer later this year.

As a partner in the Hinton Short-horn business at Venus, she will be carrying half of the herd with her to Plainview this summer. Having started as a 4-H Club member of Shorthorns, Mary has graduated to becoming a breeder, and has recently added to her herd several outstanding heifers purchased from some of the top herds in Texas and Oklahoma. Part of them are being doubly registered as beef Shorthorns and as Milking Shorthorns.

"We know that a Shorthorn steer can go into anybody's feedlot and out gain other English breeds or any other breeds, and although they will develop too thick a layer of fat if fed too long, the secret is to know when to stop feeding them and take them to slaughter," Hinton said.

"And it's well known that the Shorthorn meat has the marbling necessary to give it a superior taste and tenderness," Hinton said.

One of Hinton's greatest pleasures is taking visitors through his herd and showing them his good Shorthorns and talking Shorthorns. He invites anyone to visit anytime. The place is just off Highway 287 three miles south of Mansfield.

MAINE-ANJOU NEWS

Jay & Nita Jones Set First

Maine-Anjou Production Sale

Sunday, May 29 At Elm Mott

Elm Mott, Texas — Jay and Nita Jones, operators of C&F Cattle Co., 5-J Farms, and Cal-Tex Maine-Anjou, will host their first annual Maine-Anjou production sale beginning at 2 p.m., Sunday, May 29 at the ranch near Elm Mott just north of Waco.

Highlighting the sale offering will be two fullblood Maine-Anjou bulls one of which is Goliath's Bourne, a two-year-old son of Dollar II, who has been the Jones' herd sire, and would not be for sale except that they have bought four domestic purebred Maine-Anjou heifers and all four are daughters of Dollar II.

The other fullblood bull is being consigned to the sale by Texas Imports, Biehlerville. This bull is a yearling son of Epinal out of an imported fullblood Maine-Anjou cow. This bull is the only animal consigned to the sale.

There will also be one 15/16ths daughter of Rambler 3M, one of the first 15/16ths heifers to sell in North America. The December 1976 heifer calf is out of a cow that was the high selling animal in the Heart of Texas Maine-Anjou sale at Waco last year.

Also selling will be three seven-eighths (domestic) purebred females, one of which is bred; two purebred heifer calf pairs; four Bra-Maine heifers that are three-quarter Maine-Anjou and one-quarter Brahman; eight open three-quarter heifers; 12 halfblood bred females; three 7/8ths bulls; seven three-quarter bulls; and two 7/8ths bull calf pairs.

Jones said the Bra-Maines have aroused lots of interest already because of the popularity of Brahman-Exotic crosses.

Jay and Nita started breeding Maine-Anjous four years ago, and have been consistent buyers in most Maine-Anjou sales since then. Most all of the cattle in this sale offering will be ones they have raised themselves.

Three-quarters Maine-Anjou and one-quarter Brahman heifers like this promise to create buyer interest in Jay and Nita Jones' first Maine-Anjou production sale May 29.

This pasture scene at Jay and Nita Jones' Cal-Tex Maine-Anjou at Elm Mott is typical of the condition their grass and cattle are in.

Jones said that since most of the cattle are ones they raised, they have cost only a little more to raise than any other cattle would have, and they are expected to sell at prices commercial cattlemen can afford.

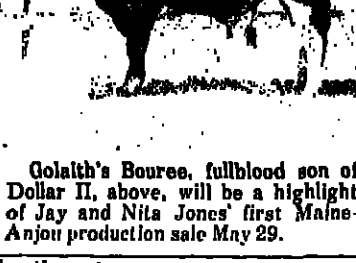

"For that reason, we are expecting to see a lot of the offering — especially the halfbloods — go to other Maine-Anjou breeders; or commercial cattlemen who are interested in getting cattle which raise bigger calves," he said.

Jones said that almost all breeds of cattle are included in the base from which his Maine-Anjous have been developed including both beef and dairy cattle.

Stanley Stout will be auctioneer.

This fifteen-sixteenths Maine-Anjou heifer calf will sell in Jay and Nita Jones' first Maine-Anjou production sale May 29. She is believed to be the first 15/16ths Maine-Anjou heifer to sell in North America.

Goliath's Bourne, fullblood son of Dollar II, above, will be a highlight of Jay and Nita Jones' first Maine-Anjou production sale May 29.

A pre-sale party will be hosted by the Jones at the sale headquarters, the International Inn, 1820 West Interstate 35 in Waco on Saturday night before the sale.

The International Inn has reserved a block of adjoining rooms for persons attending the sale and party. A barbecue lunch will be served just prior to the sale.

The sale site can be reached by taking the Old Dallas Road Exit off I-35 north of Waco, then go one mile east and watch for signs. Jones said motel reservations should be made as soon as possible, because a music festival is also being held in Waco that weekend, and motel space may become scarce.

For further information on the sale offering, contact Jay & Nita Jones, Route 1, Box 167, Elm Mott, Texas 76840, phone 817/822-1188.

He said the Department expects to gather information that will help "to safeguard job opportunities for U.S. workers and at the same time to assure that adequate labor supplies are available for agricultural employers to meet harvest and other needs."

Persons wishing to testify at the public hearings in San Antonio must call the U.S. Labor Department in Dallas at 214/749-1689 before May 4, for information about filing a formal notice to appear.

Some of the major changes proposed in the new regulations include: Efforts to recruit U.S. workers. The proposed regulations extend lead-time periods during which efforts to recruit U.S. workers must be made and require specific U.S. recruitment plans from customary users of foreign workers.

Housing facilities. The proposed revisions in the regulations require growers to provide or arrange for family housing facilities if needed to assure the availability of employment opportunities for U.S. workers on a nondiscriminatory basis.

Wages. Provisions in the new regulations are designed to eliminate some inequities in present wage practices and to assure wages offered to U.S. workers are at least equal to those offered to aliens.

Guaranteed work time. The proposed new regulations involve minor modifications in the work time guarantee, and how Sunday and holiday periods are covered.

Treatment of transportation costs and meal charges. Under the new proposed regulations, employers will have to pay some extra transportation costs, but can charge workers more for employer-furnished meals.

Sheep-ranchers. Provisions excepting sheep-ranchers from the requirement to independently recruit U.S. workers are scheduled to be removed.
